| :--- | :--- |
| Not many common words end like this.  If the root word ends in -ce, the /S/ sound is  usually spelt as c - e.g. vice - vicious, grace -  gracious, space - spacious, malice - malicious. | vicious, precious, conscious,  delicious, malicious, suspicious  ambitious, cautious, fictitious,  infectious, nutritious |
| -cial is common after a vowel letter and -tial  after a consonant letter, but there are some  exceptions. | official, special, artificial, partial,  confidential, essential |
| Exceptions: initial, financial, commercial,  provincial (the spelling of the last three is  clearly related to finance, commerce and  province). | Use |
| Use -ant and -ance/-ancy if there is a related  word with a /æ/ or /eI/ sound in the right  position; -ation endings are often a clue. | observant, observance,  (observation), expectant  (expectation), hesitant,  hesitancy (hesitation), tolerant,  tolerance (toleration), substance  (substantial)  innocent, innocence, decent,  decency, frequent, frequency,  confident, confidence  (confidential)  assistant, assistance, obedient,  obedience, independent,  independence |
| Use -ent and -ence/-ency after soft c (/s/  sound), soft g (/d3/ sound) and qu, or if there  is a related word with a clear / $\varepsilon /$ sound in the  right position.  There are many words, however, where the  above guidance does not help. These words  just have to be learnt. | Example words  (non-statutory) |
| The -able/-ably endings are far more  Rules and guidance (non-statutory)  As with -ant and -ance/-ancy, the -able  ending is used if there is a related word  ending in -ation. | adorable/adorably (adoration),  applicable/applicably  (application),  considerabbe/considerably  (consideration),  tolerable/tolerably (toleration)  changeable, noticeable, forcible,  legible |

| Rules and guidance (non-statutory) | Example words  (non-statutory) |
| :--- | :--- |
| If the -able ending is added to a word ending  in -ce or -ge, the e after the c or g must be  kept as those letters would otherwise have  their 'hard' sounds (as in cap and gap) before  the a of the -able ending. |  |
| The -able ending is usually but not always  used if a complete root word can be heard  before it, even if there is no related word  ending in -ation. The first five examples  opposite are obvious; in reliable, the  complete word rely is heard, but the y  changes to in accordance with the rule. | dependable, comfortable,  understandable, reasonable,  enjoyable, reliable |

Notes and guidance (non-statutory)

Teachers should continue to emphasis to pupils the relationships between sounds and letters, even when the relationships are unusual. Once root words are learnt in this way, longer words can be spelt correctly if the rules and guidance for adding prefixes and suffixes are also known. Many of the words in the list above can be used for practice in adding suffixes.

Understanding the history of words and relationships between them can also help with spelling.

Examples:

- Conscience and conscious are related to science: conscience is simply science with the prefix con- added. These words come from the Latin word scio meaning I know.
- The word desperate, meaning 'without hope', is often pronounced in English as desp'rate, but the -sper- part comes from the Latin spero, meaning 'I hope', in which the $\mathbf{e}$ was clearly sounded.
- Familiar is related to family, so the /ə/ sound in the first syllable of familiar is spelt as a.
